Photography by Naomi Clayton

Naomi Clayton was born and raised in Boise, Idaho. Growing up spending a lot of time in the outdoors cultivated her desire to explore photography. She wanted to capture the beauty of the natural world from the simple raindrop on an apple blossom to the complex wildflower and jagged mountain landscape. She is now starting her second year at Grinnell College and is working to continue challenging herself artistically with her camera. Her photography also appeared in Volume IV, Issue 2 of Rootstalk.
